The CALS NYS Internship Program, a collaboration between Cornell University’s College of Agriculture & Life Sciences (CALS) and CaRDI, finished its 2014 cycle with a fall forum featuring poster presentations from each of the 5 students who participated in the program. CALS Dean Kathryn Boor attended the event, meeting with each student individually, and greeting some of the internship hosts and community members who traveled from places such as Amsterdam, Batavia, and Syracuse to attend the event. Development Sociology’s Jillian Harmon (undergraduate class of 2015) and Shannon Bush (CRP Masters, DSoC Minor, class of 2015) were two of the five interns to participate in this program coordinated by Heidi Mouillesseaux-Kunzman and Robin Blakely-Armitage. To see the CALS Notes blog post, visit: http://cornellcals.tumblr.com/. For more information about the CALS NYS Internship Program, visit: http://blogs.cornell.edu/calsnysinternshipprogram/