Land Grabbing as a Project of Subject Formation

May 11, 2015 - 130 Warren Hall - 9:00 am – 5:00 pm

Presenters
Shelley Feldman, Cornell University
Alia Gana, Research Institute of Contemporary Maghreb (IRMC), Tunis
Natalia Gutkowski, Visiting Scholar, UC, Santa Cruz
Mustafa Koc, Ryerson University, Canada
Louise Silberling, Cornell University

This one-day, cross-regional workshop explores the relationship between land appropriation and subject formation/identity construction. Its purpose is to build more distinct theoretical connections between the robust literature and understanding of the multi-faceted processes entailed in land grabs and the communities or specific populations that are marked as targets for appropriation.

Open to the Public

Supported by the ISS Land Project and the Polson Institute